

Today we celebrate Juneteenth, the day when enslaved people in Texas learned of the Emancipation Proclamation that had been issued by President Lincoln more than two years earlier. We do so amidst a pandemic and protests of police violence against Black people.

In recognition of Juneteenth's message of liberation from oppression, Clearbrook would like to acknowledge that today, Friday, June 19, will be a day of reflection for the entire Clearbrook community. I understand that I will never fully understand the daily fear, anger, pain and oppression that those suffering right now face on a daily basis. I am seeking to listen, and to learn.

Here at Clearbrook, we know we have work to do to fully embrace and empower Black lives. Words alone aren't enough, and we recognize that. We want to be thoughtful in our next steps as we listen and learn.

Sincerely,

Tony Di Vittorio
